

SUPER SUPERVISOR TRAINING

What makes a supervisor super? If your supervisors perform well, so will their teams, making your business more efficient and productive. Concordia Super Supervisor Training has been developed specifically for the horticultural industry. We will even tailor training to your crop.

Who is it for?

Anybody responsible for other people and their work, for example Team Leaders, Row Checkers, QC's, Packhouse Managers and Line Leaders.

What's the aim of the course?

To find out and understand the ideal attitudes, skills, knowledge, behaviours and values required to carry out the role of a Super Supervisor.

What does the course cover?

- team building
- communication skills including observation and listening
- leadership
- delegation
- planning
- motivation

Trainees will be split into 2 teams and will be expected to participate and compete in numerous teamwork challenges and activities throughout the day

Course qualification:

All trainees will be provided with a workbook which contains examples, activities and tools to be used both during the training and after in the workplace. All will receive a Concordia Certificate of Attendance.

How long is the course?

- 1 day
- Cost £80 per person (courses are subject to demand in your area and a minimum course size applies).

"This year we booked this course to train all our Team Coordinators (in total 93 people) and had very good feedback from everyone. We worked together with Concordia to create our bespoke course that will meet our needs and will cover the examples based on our farms, which is absolutely fantastic! I would recommend this course for all Team Coordinators and Supervisors both experienced and new, as it will help them to understand what the job is about and how to become super."
